Headline News

(Le Mars) — The Le Mars Community School District named its latest “Employee of the Month” during a ceremony held this morning at Kluckhohn Elementary School.

Long-time 5th grade teacher Dawn Richards was recognized as the “Employee of the Month” by Larry Petersen, a board member of the Le Mars School District Foundation.

(Le Mars) — During the open house ceremonies recognizing the newly remodeled library, and honoring National Library Week, the Le Mars Chamber of Commerce presented Le Mars Public Library Director Shirley Taylor with the “Boss of the Quarter” honor. Taylor was instrumental during the transitional period when the public library was being renovated. She was nominated by the library staff. In addition to awarding Taylor with the Boss of the Quarter, the library also held a ribbon cutting ceremony acknowledging the renovation, as well as National Library Week.

(Radio Iowa) - Kim Reynolds will be among a group of governors and congressional leaders meeting with President Trump later this morning “to discuss trade,” according to a news release from the governor’s office. On Tuesday, Reynolds assembled a group of Iowa agricultural leaders in her office to send a public message about the impact of a trade war with China.

“Iowa has benefitted from our long-standing relationship with China by establishing new and expanded opportunities for not only our ag commodities (and) feed ingredients, but our agricultural equipment as well,” Reynolds said.

The mere “potential” of Chinese tariffs are creating real concern for Iowa farmers, according to Reynolds.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) – Iowa Gov. Kim Reynolds has signed into law an immigration enforcement bill that bans so-called sanctuary cities.

The Republican governor signed the bill privately Tuesday. The news was tucked into a press release about 16 other bill signings.

The legislation will require law enforcement to follow requests from federal agents to hold a jailed person suspected of being in the country illegally. Local governments risk losing state funding if they don’t comply with the law.
